

Real Quotes from Real Students

From ACT:

This may be the most exciting class in my whole time here - certainly the only class where I can consistently take what I have learned or worked on in class to every rehearsal

Jeffrey is an inspiring and persistent teacher whose relentless demands for high quality of focus and concentration and self-examination keep me on my toes and in shape physically and mentally. I have learned much that I have been able to apply directly and effectively to my work.

Jeffrey is the blood and guts of the ACT ATP class. Given more time with him we could storm the capital and take over the country

Jeffrey has an exquisite balance between discipline and playfulness - this work unifies and ties together the work of almost every other class a wonderfully focused, caring, and important teacher. His class is a combination of strict discipline and crazy spontaneous fun

he is demanding - I feel challenged every class to perform to the best of my ability and focus - he is inspiring - we talk passion and craft - he is attentive to personal progress and to form

From STANFORD:

Jeffrey is an amazing teacher. I have never had so much fun in this class. In fact, I looked forward to this class every week during the quarter, and I'm so sad that it's over. Jeffrey is so much fun, so engaging, and really wants to make sure you appreciate what he is doing with the class. He will not have the class something if people don't think it's beneficial or they aren't enjoying it.

He's very knowledgeable/experienced about the field and it shows, because he's really articulate about what exactly he'd like from us with each performance. He's also really, really fun to be around, which makes the class a joy to come to.

I thought that one of the greatest strengths of Professor Bihl was his ability to see each person's individual strengths and weaknesses in performing a piece and assign them scripts and roles that either played off those strengths, or sometimes pushed them a little out of their comfort zone so as to expand those strengths. He is very straightforward and clear as to what we should do to improve our pieces, and always encourages us to do better.
